CAPÍTULO 13

EL ARCA DE EJMADHERRASA

La fortaleza volante en la que se encontraban Zorham, los niños y sus familias y el resto de los prisioneros se elevó por los aires y puso rumbo hacia Ejmadherrasa. Todas las demás naves habían emprendido ya la huida, hacia la inmensidad del espacio. Los habitantes de Ylandia habían perdido sus hogares, pero se sentían libres y confiaban en que pronto recuperarían su vida.

Los radares del centro de control detectaron un gran número de naves que se acercaban a Ylandia desde los confines del universo. De improviso, esas de su vivienda. Pulsó el botón que abría la compuerta y se encontró, frente a frente, con su madre, que la miraba con cara de pocos amigos.

—¿De dónde vienes? —le preguntó.

La niña tragó saliva y respondió francamente:

—He estado fuera. Imaginando la naturaleza.

—¡Sabes de sobra que es peligroso permanecer en el exterior! ¿Llevabas puesta la máscara?

La niña no tuvo necesidad de contestar porque su gesto avergonzado la delató. Así que, la madre dio por terminada la conversación diciendo:

—¿De modo que has salido sin máscara? Pues estarás castigada durante muchos, muchos días. Ya eres mayor y deberías ser más responsable.

Sara bajó la cabeza, no quería que su madre se preocupara, pero no podía resistir la tentación de abandonar la fortaleza con frecuencia. A veces, estando en el exterior, se quitaba la máscara, porque tenía la sensación de que sin ella podía imaginar mejor los olores, los sonidos y los millones de tonos que en el pasado adornaron Ylandia, su planeta.

Annie has the gift to see chimeras, but she's tried to avoid drawing attention—until a chance encounter with Kian changes her path completely.
